Men are not made in the same mould, like a lot to bricks. It would have ill-suited the wants of the world if it had been so. Consequently, even in the same country, men differ in disposition, and inclination and manners, and opinion, more probably than they do in face or form. And between the people of different countries the contrast is even more striking. We have then, also, different sentiments, different sympathies, different hopes, different ways altogether. It will always be so. So long as there are different minds, there will be different views on all matters that admit of opinion. So long as there are different degrees of latitude and longitude, as well as differing circumstances there will be different interests' different attachments and different habits. It behoves us, therefore, to cultivate a generous spirit of forbearance towards those, of whatever race, who may think differently and act differently, from ourselves. Even though we may be convinced that they are wrong, if we know them to be sincere, we should still bear with them and give them credit for their sincerity. This is the virtue of toleration or bearing with others when we may differ from them, or may not like their ways. Toleration should be shown in all differences of opinion on even the highest matters of life and death; and there it is of more value than anywhere else. When we cannot agree with one about a point of science, or philosophy, or faith, we can at least agree to differ from him, and there is an end. We must always remember that we are all likely to makemistakes and possess weaknesses, and that we ourselves need the same forbearance and sympathy. We are, besides, all of the same human brotherhood, and should, "like brothers, agree".
